Tip: Coupons for Oil Changes

Unless you have the time and inclination to change the oil in your car yourself, chances are you take your car to a mechanic. Since this is something which should be done every few months, it is best to find a coupon or discount for the service.

Luckily, oil change coupons are not in short supply. For example, Jiffy Lube coupons can easily be obtained online or through the mail, and car dealerships with service departments routinely send coupons out to existing customers in an attempt to get their business. As with most coupons, however, you must be careful to not simply take the cheapest offer which comes along.

When you are dealing with the maintenance of your car, you want to deal with a trusted source. If the mechanic you currently use does not send out coupons in the mail for oil changes, then you may want to search the Internet for coupons to the mechanic or instead contact the mechanic and ask for a discount for regular customers. Taking 10 percent off your oil change bills is not enough to throw the mechanic into financial peril, but it is probably enough of a discount to ensure you will keep coming back

Tip: Finding Coupons

If you're planning on shopping at your favorite apparel stores, try searching for a coupon before you go. Access your favorite search engine and type in "Kohl's Coupon" or "Land's End Coupon." If there are any coupons to be had for these places, your search will unearth them.

Tip: Getting the most from your coupon

Web site prices and in-store prices for the same products may vary. If you have a coupon, make sure it's really a bargain. First call your local retailer and see how much the item is in-store. Next check the price on the Web site. If the price is higher online, the coupon might not be such a bargain. If the coupon can be used both online or off, bring it to the place that saves you the most money.

Tip: Online Coupons - Free Shipping

One of the benefits to online coupons is that you can use a bunch of them in one purchase. If you do a lot of spending around the holidays, or are planning a big purchase like a new piece of furniture, save your shipping coupons and use them at one time for super-savings. For example, if you use your online Eddie Bauer coupon for most of your end of the year holiday gifts, you're saving the shipping charge on each item in your shopping cart. Online free shipping coupons used for a single small item, won't yield a major savings.

Tip: Sign up for online deals

There aren't always coupons available for your favorite stores. Still, who wants to play full price? The next time you access the Web site to your favorite clothing store, sign up for their mailing list. You'll always be alerted to sales and special bargains - some of which are only available for those who sign up for the newsletter. Save your coupons for sales days. You'll receive extra savings, usually in the form of free shipping.

Tip: Act Quickly!

If you have a coupon code from a major online retailer, act quickly. Most of them are only good for two or three days, and rarely longer than a week. Don't hold on to coupons before first checking the expiration date.

Tip: Coupon Tips

Want some great tips on how to best use promotions and coupons? Talk to the people who make couponing a hobby. By visiting forums at couponing Web sites you'll learn useful information such as whether or not your particular coupon code can be used in conjunction with a gift card, or how you can stack your coupons for the biggest savings.

Tip: Dell Discounts

Once you've narrowed down your search and you know what you want, check the manufacturer's Web site for rebates for coupons. Or, do a search engine search for coupons.

For example, you can save 30% on Inspiron™ laptop purchases over $1349 plus get FREE Standard Shipping! Now includes Inspiron 13! Coupon Code: N2BTT7B739G4FL

Depending on the computer you decide to purchase, your coupon can yield savings of up to $500!

Just because a bargain is offered online doesn't mean you have to use it online. Printable coupons can be found at many couponing Web sites and can be printed out to be used for in-store savings.

Tip: What is a stackable coupon?

Stackable coupons are offers that can be used in conjunction with other offers. For instance, if you have a Dell coupon code for a product discount, and you come across another Dell coupon code for free shipping, you might be able to use them together. This is called stacking. In some cases, you can use as many coupons as you want, in others only one is accepted. Always check the fine print before you stack coupons.

Tip: Determine if Prescription Drug Coupons Save Money

Many pharmaceutical companies offer coupons for dollars off or even free trials of prescription drugs, believing you will continue using their drug. Concerns are that patients will be coaxed into using a more expensive drug, or feel that they need to take unnecessary medications. If the prescription medication is covered by your insurance and your co-pay is affordable, ask your doctor for coupons or check online before you fill your prescription. Otherwise, a generic or alternate medication might be more affordable in the long run. And always heed your doctor's advice.

Tip: Gym Membership Coupons and Discounts

Not ready to hit the gym, but still want to lose weight? Many dieters find that joining a support group can supply just the boost they need to rev up their weight loss. Why not search for a coupon or discount for a diet support group before ever attending a meeting? These types of support groups often publish coupons or advertise savings and discounts which can be applied to enrollment fees, monthly fee, or any food products marketed by the company. Weight Watchers coupon or a Jenny Craig coupon is simple. Either check the company websites and there is bound to be a special going on or contact one of the local offices and inquire about the current discounts. The personnel at the office will be able to direct you toward any published coupons or may instead rattle off a variety of current discounts and fee-less registrations which are being offered at the time. Just be sure to understand the terms and conditions of the discount before signing up; saving $20 off enrollment fees is great, but if it means you have to sign up for six months of membership at $40 a month, you aren't saving that much money at all in the long run.

Tip: Some Discounts Aren't Worth It

Consumers need to be careful when buying any type of dietary supplement, especially those supplements which are designed to help a person lose weight. When shopping for a weight loss supplement, the cheapest product should not necessarily be the product you buy, even if the coupon or discount makes the supplement ridiculously inexpensive. It is far more preferable to do some research and talk to your doctor about which weight loss supplement is right for you, and once the decision has been made you can go on a quest to find a coupon or discount for that particular product. The process may seem a little backwards to thrifty folks who are used to buying things because they are cheap as opposed to buying things regardless of an available coupon or discount, but you simply cannot afford to gamble with your health. After all, it will probably not be hard to find some form of a discount once you get your mind set on a particular brand.

Tip: Apple Educational Discounts

Apple Computer Inc. offers generous discounts to students college age and younger. While shopping online, students can check out the Apple Store for Education which offers iPod educational discounts, Macintosh educational discounts and savings on just about every other product they offer. Apple also offers a substantial discount to families who are homeschooling their children. If you plan on purchasing an Apple product and you are currently enrolled in school, you can save quite a bit of money by using the student discount. There may not necessarily be a coupon code to enter when checking out, but you may need to verify your enrollment status as a student before you will receive the discount. It makes sense to take the extra time to find out about any student discounts offered, because the amount of money the student discount saves you can be a nice little chunk of change.

Tip: Textbook Discounts

Purchasing textbooks for college classes can be ridiculously expensive, so it is important to know the best ways to find discounts and coupons for the books you need each semester. First and foremost, it should be acknowledged that used textbooks are a viable alternative to new textbooks, and whenever you can get your hands on a used textbook you are automatically saving money. Beyond used textbooks, however, you should know that your college bookstore may not necessarily be the most frugal place to purchase the books you need. Instead, you should take the time to conduct an Internet search to see if someone else is selling the exact textbook you need at a highly discounted price. Many websites will allow you to purchase a used textbook and also utilize coupon codes for further discounts. Amazon.com is a great example of this; you can use an Amazon coupon code for free shipping or a percentage off the final price, while also purchasing a used textbook at half the cost of what it would be at your school's bookstore. Before your next semester, take a look at the offerings online and you may be pleasantly surprised at the savings you can get on textbooks.

Most of the coupons featured online will get you a buy-one get-one free discount, or at least a small percentage off your purchase price. Incidentally, you should know that the Entertainment website usually has a sale advertised for the purchase of one of their books, meaning you can get a discount on a discount book! Now that's an effective way of saving money.

Tip: Save Money on Your Next Party with Online Coupons

If you are throwing a party, you know that you want to have a lot of fun while saving the most money. However, the dollar signs still normally seem to add up and before you realize it you might have a huge hole in your pocket that the company of your friends and family will not be able to fill. Is there a way to have fun and save money at the same time? You bet! With a little typing on the keyboard a person can find discount online coupons for all of his party needs. If you are having a movie party you might look for a deep discount DVD coupon that will help you buy some of your favorite movies that you can keep on hand. If you want to rent movies you can find discount DVD rental coupons online that will help you save a dollar or two on each movie you rent. Decorations are normally one of the biggest expenses of a party. However, you can find online coupons for discount party supplies as well that will allow you to save half of what you would have spent. If you want to plan a party outside of your home and want to save money, think about activities that are fun to do outside, like paintball, and look for discount paintball coupons. The possibilities are endless if you want to have a fun and inexpensive party. You just have to know where and how to look!

Tip: Sirius Satellite Radio

Sirius Satellite Radio is one of the few satellite radio services currently offered. The purchase of a Sirius receiver does not complete your membership; you also need to pay an annual or monthly fee to receive the radio transmission. For this reason, you will want to make sure it's something you will truly use. You can find a Sirius promo code for a free trial of their radio service, which you listen to online, at the Sirius website. They also usually have a rebate offer available for the receiver you purchase if you decide to get the service in your car or home.

Tip: Video Rental Coupons and Promo Codes

The most recent trend in movie rentals is for video rental services to send movies to you directly through traditional mail. You keep the movies as long as you want, and then when you have finished watching them you return the movies and you're sent more. For these services, you pay a flat monthly fee. Both Netflix and Blockbuster offer free trial offers to introduce new customers to the service, but the length of the free trial depends on which coupon you can get your hands on. Blockbuster coupons are often for a full month trial subscription, while Netflix usually offers a two week trial. You can occasionally find coupon codes for longer trial periods. For example, it is not uncommon to stumble across Blockbuster coupons which stretch the trial period out to a month's time.

Tip: Shop the Perimeter

Your everyday staples such as meat, vegetables and dairy are located around the perimeter of the store. Since most people shop until their carts are full, try shopping the store's perimeter first. Fill your cart up with the necessities and then only walk the aisles for coupon or sales items. This will help to control impulse shopping.

Tip: FTD Coupons

Tip: Send Flowers to Anyone "Just Because"

Like many other items in the economy, the cost of flowers has risen continuously over the past several years. Many people only send flowers to the ones they love on special occasions like birthdays and anniversaries, or on Valentine's Day. However, you don't have to limit your flower-giving to special occasions in order to avoid the high costs if you know how and where to look for discounts. CouponWinner.com can help you find online discounts on flowers from more than a dozen mail-order florists. A couple of names you will recognize are 1-800-Flowers and Telflora; however, there are many more so your choices are not limited and neither is the savings. So next time you need to order flowers but are worried about the cost, be sure to visit CouponWinner.com first to locate the perfect online coupon -- with your savings you'll have enough money left over to send yourself a bouquet too!

Tip: CVS Stores and Coupons

If you have a CVS nearby, you can use the store for more than just filling prescriptions. Besides the typical healthcare related items, many stores are becoming bigger and bigger, offering more grocery-related items as well. There are several different ways to save money on all these items, and that is not just by shopping sales. First off, get an ExtraCare card. This is their loyalty shopping card. It offers both savings and rewards. Many sale prices are only available if you have an ExtraCare card. So, that $5 box of cereal is $3.50 with your card, no coupon required. In addition to instant savings, the card rewards you with ExtraBucks. These are like cash for future purchases, just do not use them for your next prescription, as that option is banned. A recent deal involving ExtraBucks involved purchasing $30 worth of Proctor & Gamble products, like Charmin, Cascade, Tide, or Bounty, and getting $10 back in ExtraBucks. ExtraBucks also comes with quarterly cash back. For every two prescriptions you fill, CVS gives you $1 in ExtraBucks. They also add up your purchases and then give you 2% back, again in ExtraBucks. In addition to lower prices and cash back, the ExtraCare card will generate store coupons for you. Visit the ExtraCare Coupon Center in the store and scan your card. The scanner has an attached printer for printing coupons (or any pending ExtraBucks). Be sure to scan the card multiple times as it doesn't always print all your coupons with one scan. Don't be afraid to scan three times, if not four. Coupons and ExtraBucks will also print out at the register at the bottom of your receipt. Be sure to check your receipt for unexpected coupons before throwing them out. ExtraBucks are not just generated from making specific purchases. If you register your card on their web site ( <http://www.cvs.com> ), you can also get special coupons from there. Just signing up gets you a $4 off coupon for a $20 purchase. (The $20 amount is on the full price of the item, not the price after getting instant savings with the ExtraCare card.) Registering an email with the online account will then get even more coupons emailed to you. Lately, they have been sending out 20% or 25% off coupons, almost weekly. Unfortunately, those discount coupons only work on items not on sale. Another thing you can register for is their Beauty Club. Once you sign up, for every $50 you spend on beauty-related products, you earn a $5 ExtraBucks coupon for a later purchase. That total is cumulative, meaning the $50 can be spread across multiple purchases, as long as you present your card each time. Finally, one should also mention their ExtraCare Advantage for Diabetes program. If you suffer from diabetes, or are the caregiver of someone who does, you can get double rewards on certain products. Yet another way of earning ExtraBucks is by going green. If you frequently bring your own bags, get a Greenbagtag for $1 and present it with your ExtraCare card with each purchase. For every four times you use the tag, $1 in ExtraBucks gets printed, for a later purchase. It is like saving an extra quarter on every purchase. That doesn't sound like much, but it will add up over time. ExtraBucks Rewards and store coupons from the coupon center have been mentioned, but it is important to focus on coupon usage as a whole to get the most savings at CVS. That basically means combining store coupons with manufacturer coupons. By combining all options available to you, you will save the most money. One can just say read their coupon policy ( <http://www.cvs.com/bizcontent/general/help/coupon-policy.pdf> ), but it is best to spell out how to save. First off, it is important to mention that you can combine store coupons with manufacturer coupons. You can combine both with getting ExtraBucks back, if there is a weekly or monthly deal in place, too. Here's a common deal that you can take advantage of. Imagine a $5 tube of toothpaste on sale for $3.50 where you get $2 back in ExtraBucks. Typically, there will be a limit of two times you can get the ExtraBucks back. That means what originally started as $10 for two tubes, has a sale price of $7 for two tubes, with $4 back in ExtraBucks for a future purchase, or essentially $3 for two tubes. Now comes the coupons. It is not uncommon to have $1 coupons be available for toothpaste, at least for Crest and Colgate. That brings the price down to $1 for two tubes. This might sound like a much better price than $10 for two tubes, but you can do better. Scanning your ExtraCare card at the in store coupon machine may print out a coupon for $1 off two tubes. Thus, getting the overall price down to $0 or free. Even without that last coupon, it is not uncommon to get toothpaste for free by combining just the sale price, ExtraBucks, and manufacturer's coupons. You should set a goal of never paying for toothpaste again. It is a very realistic goal. The next important policy to mention is buy one, get one (BOGO) free sales and coupons. If an item is on sale where you buy one and get the other item for free, there are two ways where you can get both items for free. Both of these ways are not uncommon. The simplest to explain is if you have a buy one, get one free coupon. Using this coupon with a BOGO sale means both items are free, one from the manufacturer and one from CVS. The other way to get both items free is to have a coupon that covers half the cost of each item. So if shampoo has a price of $2.00 and is buy one, get one free, you can use two $1 coupons to get both items for free. Even if you do not have coupons to cover the full cost of both items, you can still get both items for drastically reduced prices by remembering to use one manufacturer's coupon for each item purchased. Overage is an important topic to mention, too. This is when the value of a coupon covers more than the cost of an item. Unfortunately, you cannot use the overage on other items. Store policy is to reduce the amount of the coupon to the price of the item. Also, you will not get cash back if the total value of all the coupons exceeds the value of the transaction. Grab a candy bar and reward yourself if that ever happens. An overage can happen when using store coupons or ExtraBucks as part of the transaction, in addition to sales and manufacturer coupons. For all purchases, it is important to mention that state law determines how much sales tax is paid. It could be on the full purchase price or the after coupon price. Try out the purchase and you'll quickly learn how your state handles the situation. Getting your coupons can be a chore, as is organizing them, but taking the time to do it right will save you the most money. First off, do not throw away those Sunday coupon circulars after you make a single pass through them for what you typically buy. You may not realize you can get free razors or air freshener until you notice a sale with ExtraBucks available, but the deal will only work if you had cut out the coupons. Thus, if you can, save the coupon circulars until the last coupon in each expires. Secondly, be sure to check out the Internet as a source of coupons. CVS will accept any valid at-home printed coupon that contains a bar code. Many of the great sources for Internet coupons are related to the coupon circulars ( <http://www.redplum.com/> and <http://smartsources.com/> ), but there are also places like <http://www.coupons.com/> that probably has the most coupons available. Be sure to check manufacturer sites for coupons, too. For instance, for Betty Crocker product coupons, you can visit <http://www.bettycrocker.com/coupons-promotions/coupons/default> to see what they have available. You need to check at least monthly, as offerings change frequently, and the better coupons run out quickly. Typically, coupons are only allowed to be printed so many times, so if you think you may use a coupon, print it out as soon as you see it available. Is that all there is to couponing at CVS? Certainly not. However, it is enough to get you going in the right direction. If it sounds like too much, instead of doing all the research and coupon planning yourself, find someone online who has already done it. Then, follow their lead. Typically, they will even have links to where to get the coupons, if they are available online. There are many mommy blogs that highlight the weekly CVS sales and coupon match with the sale items. Make a game of it and see how much you can get each week with $5 or $10, where you can take the ExtraBucks earned from the first purchase and then use them to buy more items that generate more ExtraBucks, and so on, and so on. Sometimes, you may even have to buy an item for free that you do not need or want, in order to get an item you do want for less.

Tip: Free Product Coupons

Coupons become less of a money-saver when they compel shoppers to purchase costly products which they probably would not have otherwise purchased. On the other hand, coupons which offer a product at absolutely no charge are a great way to not only try a new product, but to try it without spending a dime. Free food coupons are not as easy to come by as other coupons, but they do exist. Manufacturers distribute these coupons in an attempt to get the word out about a particular product and to get people to try it out. Many times companies will offer coupons not only for food products, but for other products as well. It is common to see a free product coupon for something which will eventually need a refill, such as a plug-in air freshener or a razor. This is a great way for consumers to try a new product without the fear of wasting money on something which they may not like. The hope of the manufacturer, however, is that consumers will love the product and continue to buy it while also telling their friends about how much they love the product.

Tip: Printable Grocery Coupons

Printable coupons are convenient because you print only the coupons you want or need, thereby reducing clutter. Why clip coupons from the Sunday paper and then have to store them when you can just print the coupons you want from your printer and not have a stack of unused coupons sitting around?

Printable coupons are quick and easy to print, plus more and more retailers are accepting printed coupons.

Tip: Selling Grocery Coupons

According to the Federal Trade Commission, there is only one way to legally use grocery or other manufacturer's coupons: clip the coupon and use it at the grocery store or other business toward the purchase of its designated product or service. While some people get around this legality by selling their time for finding, clipping, and mailing grocery and other manufacturer's coupons, it is frowned upon by the manufacturers who distribute these coupons. Most are marked "non-transferable", meaning that even if they are given away they should be considered void.

Tip: Home Furnishings Promotional Codes

When you want to purchase home furnishings from a large store, you should always check first to see if you can find any promotional codes online. Promotional codes, also referred to as coupon codes, is a unique set of numbers, letters or a combination of the two which you input into the coupon box when making your home furnishing purchase online. Promotional codes can save you quite a bit of money, but they all eventually expire so you need to be sure that the promotional code you are using is valid. Coupon code for Bed and Bath Store: Shop the Warehouse Clearance Sale at BedBathStore.com and save 10% with code: MARCH1008

Tip: Introductory Discounts

Most home furnishing stores have their own credit cards that they offer to customers. Although the credit cards for these stores generally have high interest rates compared to a regular credit card, they can come with nice perks. Your first purchase on a home furnishings store credit card is usually discounted and if you make a major purchase, even 10 percent off the price will save you quite a bit of money. The trick is to pay off the balance before any interest accrues on the account. Holding on to the card may be to your advantage, too, since retailers will offer periodic sales exclusively for cardholders and will often send coupons to cardholders in the mail. Just be sure that you do not carry a balance on the store credit card because of the higher interest rates. Using the card excessively will surely make any discounts you received not worth it overall.

Tip: Use Coupons to Furnish Your Home and Save Money

When buying a new home or remodeling your current home, there is a good chance that you will be looking to buy new items that will help update your new look and fill the space you are acquiring. Free upgrades are common, as are discounted fees for multiple days of rental. Be sure to use a coupon and decline all the extra coverage and costly upgrades you will surely be offered. Always make sure you return the car with a full tank of gas too, otherwise you'll pay a ridiculous amount of money upon returning so the rental company can refill the tank. If you play your cards right, you can get a rental car at a very reasonable price. Don't ever pay full price for a rental car.

Tip: Save on a car rental

Ask first, and if you don't succeed, head back to the airport!
